PRINCE ALBERT, APRIL 16, 1895

The celebrated cattle case is now over, the evidence has been given, the conviction pronounced and the convicted have gone to serve out the term pronounced upon them. With regard to the justice or injustice of the trial we have nothing to say. They were tried by their peers and on the evidence given convicted and there was nothing left for the Judge but to give sentence upon the culprits found guilty according to law. What we would wish to draw attention to is the sorrow and affliction which invariably follows in the train of dishonesty and deceit. Sin is sure to bring its own punishment, and the worst feature of it is that this punishment not only affects the culprits themselves, but spreads dismay, affliction and sorrow in their families and all connected with them by the tie of relationship. It is they to whom our compassion and pity extend, for they only are the real sufferers. They deserve the sympathy of the whole community because their's is a sorrow that is more poignant, than could be brought around by death itself. And this public sympathy is not wanting, if we are to judge by the public expressions of regret for these unfortunate families which we hear expressed on every side. But for ourselves, strange to say, while we no doubt feel compassion for these unfortunate, yet we confess our greatest commiseration is for the victims of these dishonest practices. It is the poor settler who is striving to till the soil and make himself an honest livelihood that evokes our pity. We have no sympathy with dishonest practices whether perpetrated by the poor tramp who is too lazy to work or by the gilded scoundrel who dabbles in speculation and sharp practices. There is a sort of mawkish sentiment in the churches of to-day which would draw a veil over the peccadilloes of the church man providing he gave a round sum to help to adorn their places of worship. There is a belief from where derived we cannot tell, that it is no sin to cheat a person out of his property providing that the victim has not the sense to see it, or has the utmost confidence in the honesty of the person he deals with. To make our meaning clear, we recollect once upon a time we went into a certain place of worship and had the pleasure of hearing a man get up and relate his experience of religion. He could tell the very day and hour in which he was converted, and really it was edifying to hear him relate the workings of the Holy Spirit in his soul, and the calm confidence he had in salvation. Some two or three days after through some plausible manipulation the same individual managed to do a poor simple individual out of a valuable piece of landed property; and when this man was remonstrated with on his conduct, he simply replied that it was no sin as the owner of the property was fool enough to allow himself to be cheated. This perversion of justice seemed to us so unnatural that we ventured to ask the clergyman his opinion of a case of that kind, his reply was to the same effect; namely, that he did not think the man who got the property by these means was to blame as the original owner was fool enough to allow himself to be swindled. We confess we were shocked by this kind of reasoning; but in conversation with many adventurers and speculators we found that this was the common doctrine. This has had the effect of causing us to feel a secret pleasure when vengeance overtakes the swindler, the robber or the thief or anyone who deprives his fellow-man of his property in any way in which a fair equivalent is not given in return. For ourselves we would like to see every dishonest person, whether under the guise of theft or plausible double dealing, chained to a rock in mid-ocean, as was done with Napoleon at St. Helena.

We suppose that there is hardly any town of any great size that has not its quota of the genus "rough," or more plainly speaking that part of the population of the mall persuasion what are in the transition state between men and boys. They may be easily known by their habit of lounging around street corners about dusk and in the evenings loafing with their hands in their pockets, and a pipe stuck, or rather bung in the slack corner of their mouth giving that opening in the face the appearance of an irregular slit made by some blunt instrument. Being without brains as yet they make up the lack of it by pretensions to a kind of very rude wit, which consists of passing remarks on the various people that pass and repass on our streets, more especially on the female portion of the community, which by so doing they have an idea that they are very smart and ready-witted; while in reality they are a nuisance to all concerned. We suppose that there is at present a small crop of these pests amongst us already and the sooner the town authorities set about weeding them out the better it will be for the place of our society. These creatures roam about at all hours of the night indulging a sort of horse play when decent people are at rest, and in the morning the streets are filled with marks of their senseless carousals. Now if these things are allowed to go on there is no saying where it will end; but we are sure that it will end in some serious accident or another, as this has invariably been the case when such proceedings are allowed to go on unchecked. We notice that a great many youngsters are allowed to run about here at all hours of the night. This ought not to be. Already several towns in Canada and the United States are passing by-laws prohibiting children under sixteen years of age to be on the streets after nine at night. We think it would not be a bad idea to have such a law in force in the Town of Prince Albert.

The Eastern papers are very much agitated over the way things will go at the approaching meeting of the Dominion Parliament with regard to the Manitoba school question. It at first seems strange that this simple act of the Manitoba Government should be the means of causing such an intense excitement throughout the length and breadth of this Dominion, and not only through the Dominion, but also through the borders of our neighbors in the United States. We remember that that there was considerable excitement with regard to the passing of the Jesuit Bill in 1889; but intense as the excitement was on that occasion it cannot compare with the commotion that has arisen in consequence of the order sent to the Manitoba Government to grant remedial legislation to the complaining party.

It is much to be regretted that these ebullitions of party or religious feelings should be stirred up to such a pitch. They are productive of no good and very much harm. How can we even expect to grow up and become a homogenous people if such matters as the Jesuit Bill and the Manitoba Education Bill and other things of like nature and allowed to run not in our midst. Under such circumstances it is an impossibility to weld us into one people. Some great writer has said, and we partly believe him, that the failure to cause the Roman Catholic and the Protestant to unite for the common good of the states lies not so much in the diversity of race. He points out that the Roman Catholic religion is maintained chiefly by the Latin races, whereas the Protestants are generally composed of the Saxon races; and that it is a moral impossibility to amalgamate the two races either in religious or secular thought. It would seem that they are two opposing forces which in the nature of things cannot be consolidated, but must ever remain opposed to each other. We see the difficulty before us, we see the unhappy result of these internal bickerings; but, alas! we cannot see any remedy for it, and this does not appear to us alone; but puzzles the best of our statesmen.

We have received two or three small pamphlets from the Anti-Infidel Tract Society in Boston, Mass., which are well worth reading. It may be thought out of place in a newspaper to take notice of these things but in the absence of any important local matter we think it will do no harm to refer to matters which concern our best interests. These are the days of doubt and uncertainty with regard to the future destiny of mankind, which is in a great measure brought about by the neglect of studying the Holy Scriptures, together with the activity of infidels and free-thinkers in promulgating their pernicious and seemingly plausible doctrines by means of the press, or like Ingersoll, by lectures at two hundred dollars a night. We are thankful to say that unbelief and infidelity are somewhat rare in Prince Albert, but yet we are not altogether free from it. We have met with some who seem to be drifting around like a ship without a rudder, thinking themselves somewhat in advance of those who cannot join with them in belittling the Holy Scriptures. They have read a few of Ingersoll's works, together with some so-called Egyptian mysteries with very doubtful authenticity, and forthwith believe themselves to be able to cope with any argument that may be brought to bear upon them. To counteract the effects of these specious arguments we have brought forward to trap the ignorant and unwary, the books published by this company are well adapted for the purpose of exploding the worthless reasoning of Ingersoll and his disciples, and to fortify the thinking mind against any specious argument that may be brought forward which when analyzed are absurd and worthless. In another column will be found a notice of these "Little Books," and we would recommend them as much superior and profitable reading than the average novel of the present day, which we do not hesitate to characterize as nothing short of poison to the youthful mind.

THE SASKATCHEWAN TIMES

The Cattle Case

The trial of Edward McBeath charged with stealing twenty-four head of cattle, the property of Peter Fraser, Wm. Tait and others at Prince Albert commenced on Monday, April 8th, before Mr Justice McGuire and a jury consisting of the following: Frank Cherry, Thomas Scott, John C. McNiven, George Adams, Duncan McGregor and William Miller.

James McKay, Q.C., appeared on behalf of the prosecution and R. F. Chisholm defended the accused.

Messrs. Tait, Fraser and others deposed to the loss of their cattle in the month of October last and the finding of the same at Cochrane during the past month. Several other witnesses were examined for the Crown, among them being Alan Dalgleish who had been found guilty on a previous day of having received the cattle knowing them to have been stolen. Dalgleish who seemed to feel his position acutely gave very clear evidence as to his having met McBeath with the cattle on the night in question a short distance from town. The witness was corroborated in several respects by other witnesses who located him in town at or about five o'clock in the afternoon of the day in question and then again at 6:30 p.m. of the same day. The witness seemed much less confused than on the former occasion when he gave evidence in his own behalf and stood the cross-examination of counsel for the defense most satisfactory.

On Wednesday Edward McBeath was called as a witness on his own behalf and told practically the same story which he had told on a former occasion. His evidence on cross-examination which occupied a considerable time was very poor and his admissions in reply to the questions put by his Lordship were rather humiliating.

After the address of counsel and a detailed summary of the evidence by his Lordship the jury retired on Wednesday afternoon and after three hours deliberation returned into court with a verdict of guilty against the prisoner.

On Thursday morning His Lordship addressing the prisoner, said that one of the most unpleasant duties of his office was that which was now imposed upon him. The accused was a young man only twenty three or twenty four years old, but from the evidence it would appear as if this should not have been his first appearance in a court of justice. In view of the fact that it was possible that the accused may repent on the life he had led, and in order to give him a chance to reform, the sentence of the court was that he should be confined in the penitentiary at Stoney Mountain for the term of three years. The prisoner smiled on hearing the sentence.

His Lordship was about to pass sentence on Alan Dalgleish who was now brought before court when his counsel Mr. Nolan addressing His Lordship, made an appeal on behalf of his client for the merciful consideration of the court. The accused had already suffered a terrible loss owing to the verdict of the jury against him. Though the accused had suffered pecuniary loss, it was as nothing compared to that which he had suffered by the stain which had been cast on his character—as had been shown by the evidence. Dalgleish was a man of irreproachable character whose previous record was above suspicion. He was also a married man on whom there were dependent a wife and children.

Counsel then read to his Lordship a petition signed by clergymen of every denomination, by the parties whose cattle had been stolen, by the members of the jury and by all the leading citizens recommending the prisoner to the mercy of the court.

Mr. McKay, Q.C., stated that he did not desire to press for severe punishment. His Lordship addressing the prisoner said he could not overlook the fact of the prisoner's excellent character and the large and influential signed petition which had been presented in his favor. The names on that petition were those of the parties most interested, the members of the jury by whom the accused had been found guilty, the clergymen of every denomination and others who were men of high standing in the community.

He regretted to find a man like the accused placed in such a position, and in view of all the circumstances he believed that the interests of justice would be satisfied by his ordering the accused to be imprisoned in the guard room of the N.W.M. Police Barracks at Prince Albert for one year.

The prisoners were then removed. Mr. McKay asked for an order of restriction of the stolen cattle but on the application of Mr. Nolan the matter was allowed to stand and no order made.

We understand that McBeath since being sentenced stated that Dalgleish was innocent and that it was another party who assisted him (McBeath) to bring in the cattle.

On being asked by a TIMES representative, Mr. Nolan stated that he had been informed by one of the advocates for McBeath that such was the case. Much sympathy is felt for Dalgleish who is still thought by a great many persons to be innocent and statements made by parties since the trial seems to throw considerable doubt on his guilt.

McBeath was taken to Stoney Mountain on Monday's train.

The petition presented on behalf of Dalgleish was subscribed by the following among others. Peter Fraser, Wm. Tait, James Fraser, Augustus Anderson, J. A. Vachon and S. J. Donaldson all of whom had lost cattle. Andrew Agnew, W. J. Kermaghan, Joseph Courtney, J. L. Reid, M.L.A., and Wm. Knox, members of the jury. Rev. Archdeacon Winter, Rev. Canon Elliott, Rev. G. Moore, Rev. W. Cooke, pastor of the Methodist Church. Rev. Mr. Rochester of the Presbyterian Church, J. F. Botts, M.L.A., J. W. Fenton, manager for Messrs. Moore & Macdonald, Saml. McLeod, W. R. Fish, F. W. Kerr, A. B. Spratt, F. C. Baker, Messrs. Way & Ingram, D. C. McLellan, P. J. Flanagan, W. E. Gillmor, A. Stewart, Editor of Advocate, the Editor of THE TIMES and several others.

LITTLE BOOKS.—Cotton Mather said that since he had given away many little books, God had given to him many great books. Great books have their value, but little books are far more important for common use; and while students may need the great books, the people need the little ones. Busy men and women have no time for long stories. All the books of the Bible, as written, were little books. Thousands of people who cannot read large volumes would gladly read brief pointed tracts and pamphlets. Persons interested in scattering "small books on great subjects" will do well to examine the different numbers of the Anti-Infidel Library, published by H. L. Hastings, 47 Cornhill, Boston. Most of them are 5 or 10 cent pamphlets, in readable type, but so packed with facts that they contain as much information as one would often find in a book costing a dollar. The circulation of some of these publications has been enormous, nearly sixty tons of a single one of these little tracts having been printed. We do not often see "third million" on the title of any publication, but persons who are curious can find it by sending five cents to H. L. Hastings, Boston Mass., for a copy of the pamphlet "Will the Old Book Stand?" or by sending twenty-five cents for an assorted package of his Anti-Infidel tracts.

The April number of the Colonist is out, and it is an fine issue, handsomely printed, and with eight full pages of finely executed engravings. The illustrations are mostly of Winnipeg scenes showing the city hall, post office, legislative buildings, city market, one of the fire halls and a number of street scenes. One page of Lake of the Woods illustrations is given, also a page of Selkirk views. In addition to editorial and miscellaneous matter, the number also contains several special articles. Thus, Franklin of Stonewall contributes an article on tree planting, which comes in at the right time, as the season for putting out trees is now at hand. E. Cora Hind contributes an article which recalls some reminiscences of the early days of white settlement on the banks of the Red River. An article by Hugh McKellar gives a full of information in very condensed form about Manitoba. The April number of the Colonist is the first issue since Mr. Alex. Smith assumed the management of the paper, and it is evident that he has infused new life into the enterprise. The journal may now be expected to do better work than ever before in the interest of immigration and the development of Manitoba and Western Canada.

The Manitoba Free Press in speaking of the Uxbridge Piano says: They are genuine works of art, and reflect the highest credit upon the firm which has produced them. The old style of upright piano is thrown into the shade. The Uxbridge Piano has a continuous look which will be appreciated in the playing of duets; sitting down to the piano the performer touches a lever and the keyboard is uncovered, and the hinge of the lid turn out of sight, and the instrument presents the same artistic appearance when open as when shut. The Organs manufactured by the Uxbridge company have been in use for over twenty years, and require no special description as they are so well-known and liked in the homes of the thousands over the whole world. However, the company is manufacturing a six Oct. Organ in Piano case which is having a wonderful sale. The Pianos made by the Uxbridge Piano Co. are a credit to Canadian enterprise, being equal in tone, durability and finish to the best American.

The greatest papers in Great Britain and the United States freely acknowledge the wonderful merit of the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal. The Family Herald is a great newspaper and a great family paper, but it is more than that, it is one of the greatest authorities in the world on cheese, butter, general dairying, and general farming. How a progressive, up-to-date farmer can do without the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal is hard, indeed, to understand.

Messrs. Dick's, Montreal.
"Dick's Blood Purifier" is the best of all the condition powders I ever used. It makes a horse thrive and feel well, improves his coat and keeps him long healthy in the legs, no matter how long he stands in the stable! I give half of the first box to a gentleman who had a fine trotting stallion that had swollen in the legs, and had scratches from being out of condition, and in a few days his legs were perfectly clean, and the cracks healed rapidly.
